

Abstract

A device for repairing a defect in a soft tissue is disclosed, the device including a first anchor engaging a first surface of the soft tissue on a first side of the defect, the first anchor having a locking mechanism, a second anchor for engaging 5 against a second side of the soft tissue on a second side of the defect, and a suture adjustably connecting the second anchor to the first anchor.

10